GOV. EASLEY APPOINTS BREWER TO DISTRICT COURT IN WAKE COUNTY

RALEIGH – Gov. Mike Easley today appointed Jacqueline L. Brewer to the District Court bench in the 10th Judicial District (Wake County). Brewer takes the seat created by the North Carolina General Assembly in 2007.

“Jacqueline Brewer brings extensive experience to the district court bench, plus an abiding commitment to hard work and justice,” Easley said. “I am confident she will serve the citizens well as a district court judge.”

Brewer has served as an Assistant District Attorney in Wake County for more than 20 years prosecuting misdemeanors and felonies in both District and Superior courts. She has also worked as a private practitioner and an Associate Attorney General. Brewer is a member of Wake County Bar Association and the North Carolina Association of Women Attorneys.

Brewer received her undergraduate degree from Wake Forest University in 1976 and her law degree from Campbell University in 1980.
